

Well, for book 7, it looks as though Master Crowe has upstaged Efran. Isn't Crowe beautiful?

I can't remember where I got the hair, but I found Crowe's ensemble here<sup>1</sup>. And I was surprised to discover that a fencing jacket<sup>2</sup> makes a good base for an Abbey uniform jacket. Marguerite's basement/wine vault<sup>3</sup> apparently includes a framed welcome note to visitors.

Do you recognize Crowe? Hollywood's bad boy Robert Mitchum turned out to be perfect for the part. I've never seen The Night of the Hunter, but when I ran across stills while researching faces for Master Crowe, I knew I'd found the one.

Although he's not Polonti, that sardonic glance has earned him honorary membership in the race.

Robin Hardy
April 20, 2024

PS. I am not claiming copyright on this illustration.

1. Photographed by voldrag on Pixabay
2. Photographed by Ben Kerckx on Pixabay
3. Photographed by Pixabay contributor marshalynnphillips